The event was an idea conceived by a group of six students who were back in Singapore for their summer break. Determined to support a good cause, the students collaborated with Singapore Cancer Society to organise a fundraising event. Quillion is extremely delighted to have supported the event as part of its CSR efforts, hence taking the chance to give back to society.

An approximate sum of $20, 000 was raised through auctions and sale of tables. Attractive auction items such as Bubba Watson Driver, T-shirt signed by F1 Driver Jenson Button and other enticing items from generous sponsors were up for bidding. The students were extremely pleased with the response and claimed that such warm support is certainly encouraging for youths out there who want to make a difference. In midst of our busy and hectic lives, it is important to pause and think of the ones in need and this event is simply an exemplar of that.
